To the Class of 1984

As the new President of Massachusetts Bay Community College, it is my pleasure to congratulate you upon completion of your studies here at the College. As I entered with the Freshman Class of '83, I soon became aware that the quality of students, and the interest and commitment amongst them was truly outstanding. Throughout the year this initial belief was reinforced as I became better acquainted with your class.

As students you came to the institution with a diversity of personal interests and various levels of educational obtainment. As graduating Sophomores, you have persevered and demonstrated through your achievements that our efforts to provide "opportunities for excellence" have been matched by your efforts to achieve "excellence".

I know that the Board of Trustees, faculty, administration and staff join with me in wishing you well as you pursue your future objectives.

Sincerely,

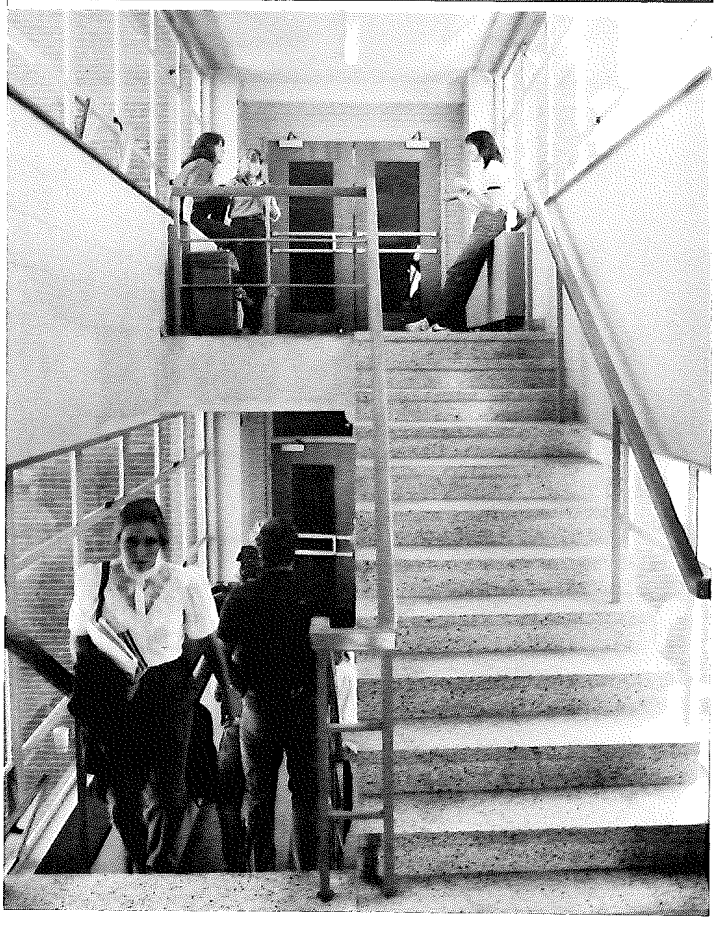

Roger A. Van Winkle

The Spirit Of Dedication

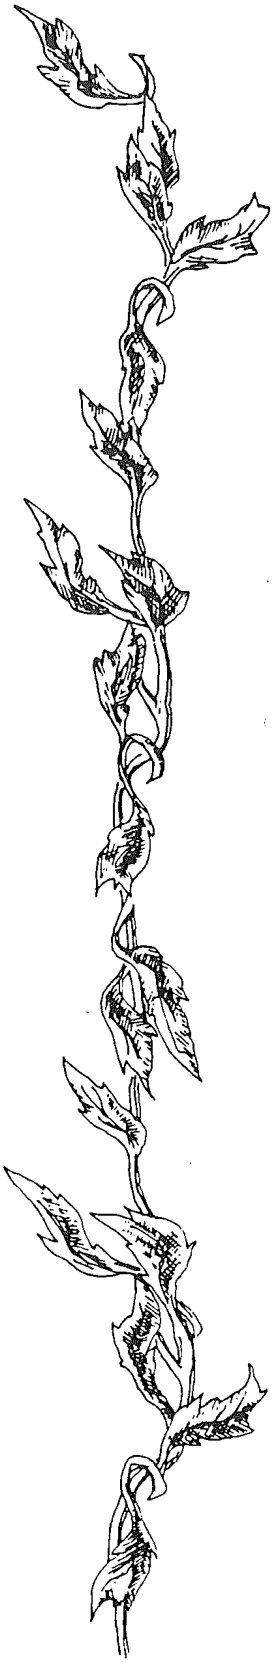

Each year the Greenyears staff chooses a member of the Faculty, Staff or Administration to whom they dedicate that year's edition of the yearbook. This person is chosen not only for job performance, but for taking that extra step. They are always ready to help any student, they are involved in activities, and make a contribution to Mass Bay and its students. And each year the staff has many people to choose from, which makes it a very difficult task.

This year's recipient fulfilled the requirments perfectly. He treats students with respect for their intelligence and ideas. He allows everyone responsibility and trusts that they can carry it out. This year he not only carried the responsibility of his own job as dean of student services, but took on the added load of directing student activities. We are proud to dedicate the 1984 edition of Greenyears to Dean Lawrence Goff.

HOW TO SURVIVE THE

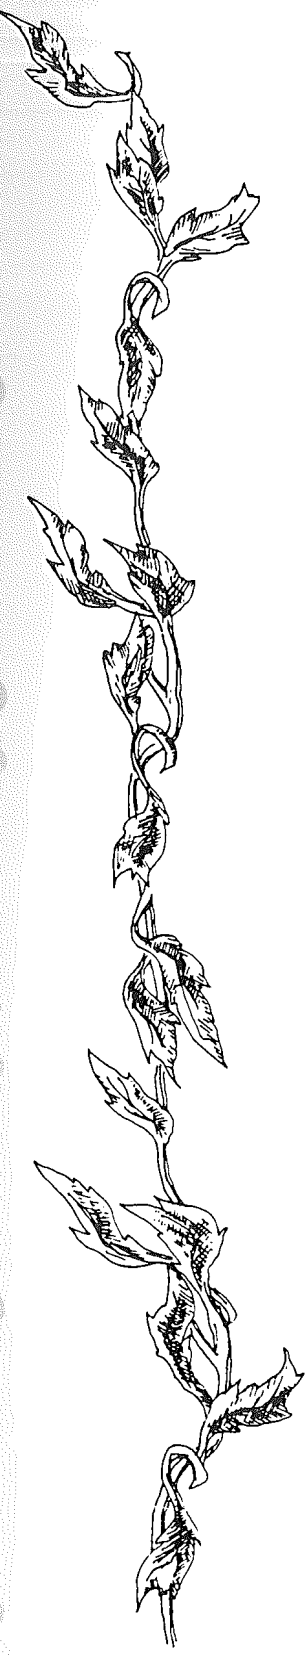

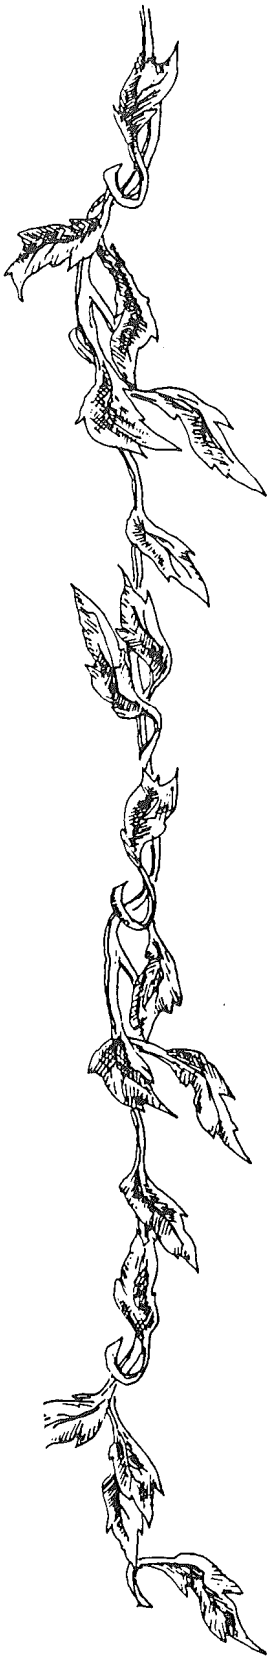

When we, the Greenyears staff were deciding what the theme of this yearbook would be, we decided on "How to Survive the Community College Jungle". We had several reasons for choosing this theme. Some of us thought it was a good theme that expressed the college experience at Mass Bay, others thought it was a broad theme that could prove to be amusing, and the rest just wanted to end the meeting. But the main feeling of the whole group was that in many ways Mass Bay resembles a jungle. A jungle has its own society and heirachy, as does Mass Bay. A jungle has the rule of survival of the fittest and Mass Bay has survival of the most fit. And as the faculty says, a jungle is full of wild animals . . . . . .

A jungle is usually considered a dangerous place where survival is the name of the game, but there is also a way you can learn and grow in the jungle. And when you learn and grow, the jungle ceases to be dangerous and becomes a way of life. With that in mind we want to show you the sanctuary called Mass Bay. So, join a survival safari through the Community College Jungle. Fasten your seatbelts, it could be a bumpy ride.

And now let's look in on the ever popular daytime drama, set in Wellesley. Wellesley, where the men are dynamic and dashing, the women are radiant and refined, and the property values are double. The soap opera where Mary loves John. Will he jeopardize their relationship and go out with the ever-so-popular cheerleader Bunny? Will Dan get caught breaking into the dean's office to change his grades? What professor will end up in a padded cell? Will the school survive another year? What will they do with the swamp land they bought for the new gym building? These questions and others will be answered after these messages. So stay tuned for our show to see the days of our lives, as we enter into another world. And as the world turns with all my children, Ryan hopes we have one life to live as we enter the school zone. where the young and the restless will learn "How to Survive the Community College Jungle."

Our drama is set at Mass Bay, a community college on Route 9. The time is now, the organ music is rising and we fade into the scene with an introduction to our cast of characters.

President Roger "Rip" Van Winkle, a tough, determined man who struggles with a limited budget to gain land and other campuses. A good administrator with a slight problem. An unethical real estate salesman sold Rip "Select Bayfront property on Wellesely Bay" only to find out that Wellesley has no bay. (Anyone can make a mistake, but this one's a dilly.) Rip's record is exempt from scandal, except for a certain rumor of a late night party in the board room. One of his staff; Dean Lawrence Goff, a kind, dedicated man; may know something about this party. The only problem with Dean Goff, or Larry lettuce as he is affectionately called by the Senate, is that he has a habit of forgetting to bring his wife to school functions. His substitute is to bring a women's coat to school events, leave it on the chair next to him and to tell everyone his wife is in the ladies room. Did he bring the coat to the late night party in the board room? One man who might know is Dean Paul Yorkis, new dean on campus. He has helped Rip find property and campuses. Was he the entertainment at the late night party in the board room? This may explain what happened to Assistant Dean Vinnie Dudley, known by all as Uncle Vinnie. What happened at the party that turned his hair gray? One person who may not have seen what happened is the student trustee, John Coyne. Can it be true that he ate all the food at the late night party in the board room? What happened to his suit with the rubber pockets? How much Alka Seltzer was consumed that night? One guy that should not know is Chris DiOrio the president of Student Senate. He was not invited to the party, did he crash with a camera hidden in his beard? Who was that mysterious bearded lady anyhow? The man that was closest to her(?) was Jim "JR" Regan, a former Student Activities director and director of Admissions who worked his wasy up to Assistant Dean over a year. Could it be that the missing pictures from that late night party in the board room fell into his hands?

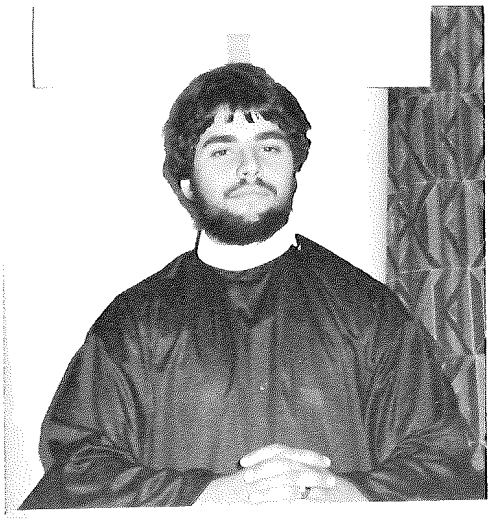

Will we find those missing pictures? Who was that lady? Will Dean Goff have to buy a new coat for himself and his wife? Can the president sell the swamp land? Will JR and Chris develop a relationship? Will we ever find out what happened at that late night party in the board room? And what about Naomi? I guess you'll have to watch the next episode of How to Survive the Community College Jungle.

Excuse me, Dean Yorkis?

What party are you talking about?

You have got to be kidding?

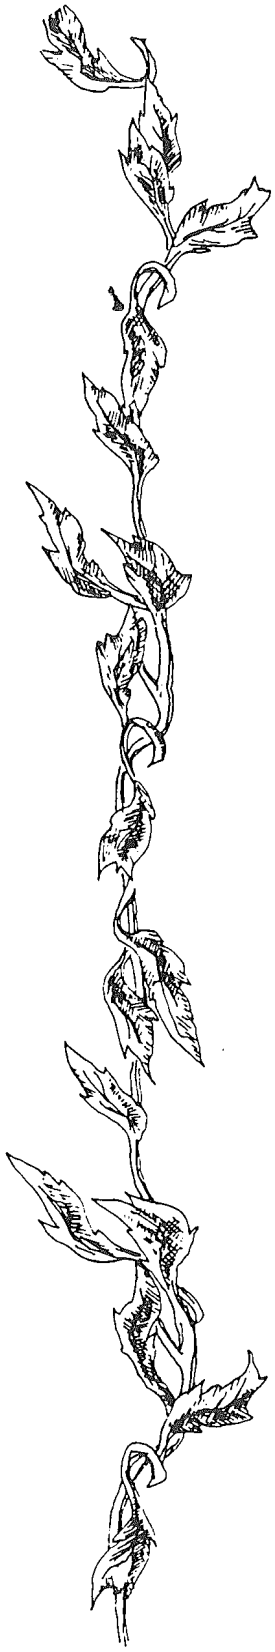

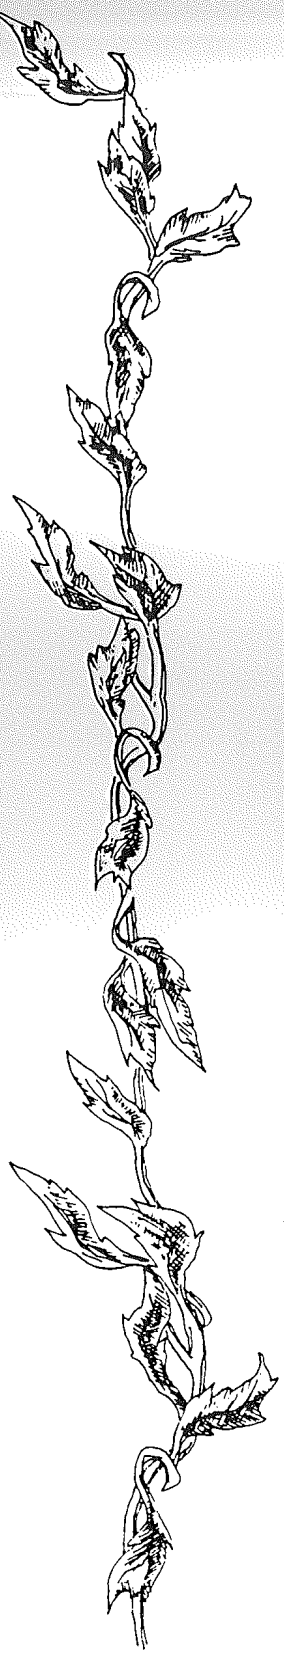

Did you mail those pictures?

STUDY

Here I sit and I ponder,
should I stay or should I wander Shall I try to study, concentrate to keep my marks at A, all straight
Or should I give in to the yearning that has my heartfire burning and go and dance the night away
or watch the Celts and Sonics play
To climb in bed and nestle down or call a friend and paint the town
To eat a feast of ice cream bars
or wolf down a dozen mallowmars
Or should I turn on my TV
and watch the Adam's Family
Or I could hit the mall and shop
(I'll have to bum off Mom and Pop)
Bake a pie, rollerskate
read a book or meditate
I don't know what I should do
Maybe dye my hair bright blue?
Now I see the time has gone
there's no reason to go on
After everything's been said
and swims around inside my head
its pointless to try and study now to learn who, what, where, when, and how
No time to study, its too late
some how it seems that it was fate
So I leave my books intact its time that I had faced the fact that I just go a little nutty
every time I try to study

There are ways to survive the Community College Jungle and not all require a 200 IQ or begging for a better grade at gunpoint. Many former community college students gathered together their scattered wits and put their weary heads together to compile vital information for the community college student and made it into a book. This is not it. What is this, you may ask? This is an accumulation of anecdotes about Mass Bay and the people who are brave enough to enter it jungle and to survive. Here are the rules to survive from the first day of school.

First, self-discipline. Not everyone has self-discipline, some people think self-discipline is being able to wait three minutes before eating a Milky Way, but there is more to it than that. To be an A student you should:

1. Not allow yourself any distractions before you finish studying. For example, watching TV or going out with your friends.
2. Get a good night's sleep every night, at least eight hours. Nevermind hitting the Metro until 1AM or watching the Twilight Zone triple feature that starts at midnight.
3. Do your homework in advance, not right before class. Start that term paper now, don't leave it until right begore its due and have to skip your other classes that day to finish the last five pages.

If you follow these three suggestions you can be an A student. (And you can see now why there are so few A students, they die of overwork.)

Second, you need to have perserverence. You have to stick to it (no, not with super glue). You shouldn't give up just because the test you "knew" you had aced turns out to be the lowest score since someone died over his test paper (and he even got a couple of points for originality); after all any one could have put all the right answers in.the wrong circles or not brought a number 2 pencil. If that happens, don't panic. You should survive that failur and find out your error and study harder. And don't "die" over your next test paper, they check to see if you're breathing.

Last, visibility. You need to be visible where it counts, to teachers, administration, and other students, (not Penthouse). This doesn't mean to wear transparent clothing or to shave your head and dye your scalp green (that's silly, you'd blend in with everyone else). Just let the teachers know you are there, in their classes, but don't be a nuisance. Don't yell from the back of the classroom, "Hey, Professor, here I am in your class." (This could get you an A if you are in Intro to Heckling-101, but otherwise it could do serious damage to your GPI)

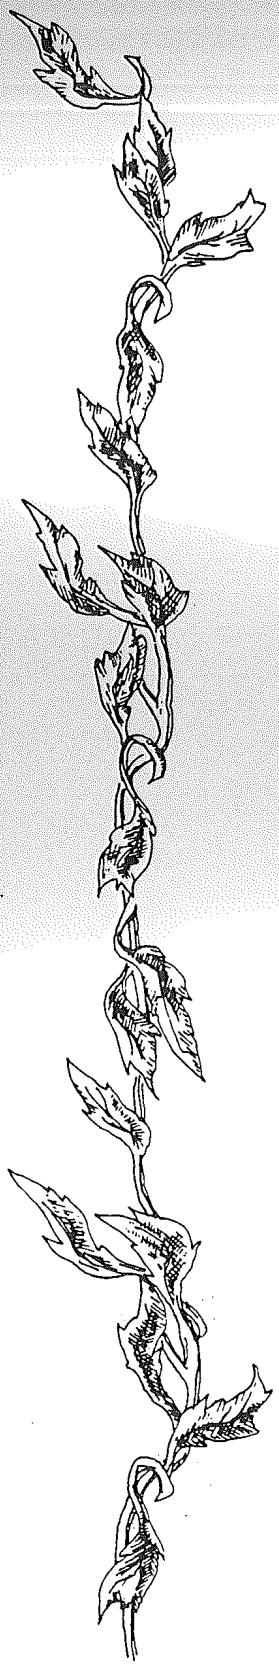

People tend to fall into different categories of visibility. One category is the hibernators, which is a great lack of visibility. Shy people and bookworms fall into this, as well as class cutters and homicidal maniacs. (But then again, who in their right mind would ask a homocidal maniac if he goes to college.) The frequent many places, the Student Center Game and TV rooms, the Cafeteria, the library and the bathrooms. The game and TV rooms are for those who cut classes and don't want their professor to see them; the library is for bookworms the shy people, who know there is no talking allowed; the cafeteria is for those who don't like to watch Leave it to Beaver or General Hospital and who also do not need complete silence to able to study; and the bathroom are for . . . . well, some people do have medical problems.

Similar to hibernators are hole hiders or people who live under rocks. These people are out of touch with the real world. You know the type, people who still use the words groovy, neat, keen, man, and hep cat. They have strange tastes, wide ties, bellbottoms, tie-dye shirts, love beads, crewcuts and they think that the Village People are the greatest thing since Donny and Marie. These people are who you usually wish would stay under their rock and if you see one carrying his briefcase and wearing his protect-o-pocket pen holder, please don't tell him that disco is dead, he may throw his pet rock at you.

These were just a few suggestions to help the community college student to survive the community college jungle, but these suggestions can help you to survive the jungle out there in the world.

Our next stop on our safari is at the Student Senate. Let's listen in on a meeting.

Chris: Alright, kids, settle down! (Pounds gavel)

Jill: Why should we do that? We never have done it that way before.

(Eddie counts heads, everyone has one, so the meeting begins)

Chris: Who wants to read the minutes?

Carolyn: I volunteer, Uncle Chris.

Chris: Not Carolyn, Lenny.

Lenny: What are we voting on?

Mark: Lenny, I believe that it is your turn to have the honor of reading the meeting's minutes.

Lenny: Oh, okay.

(The minutes are read by Commissioner Curran and they are accepted by everyone.)

Chris: Alright, the first order of business, Announcements and Reports. Radio station, Ron.

Ron: We went to Framingham last week and are going to Cape Cod next week.

Chris: Thank you, Ron. Next, Ellen for the bank machine.

Ellen: The bank machine will be in next month.

Chris: Thank you, Ellen. Next . . . (The meeting goes on but starts to get out of hand with people talking out of turn.)

Dotty: Do you know the difference between Eddie and a tack?

Jill and Linda C.: Yes, yes, yes, yes, ah, ha, ha, ha!

Cathy: (singing) Oh your hair is like spagetti and your eyes are like meatballs . . . .

Betsy: Anyone want to go skiing (giggles).

Carolyn and Betsy: Hey, Ronnie, got a mint? (giggles)

Ron: I'm gonna seriously get you guys that mint someday.

Chris: (POUNDS GAVEL) Guys, be quiet! Jennifer, you're our Parlimentarian, who has the floor.

Jennifer: According to Roberts Rules of Order, the little green and purple monsters have the floor.

Sue: Jen, grow up. Chris, let's do it that way.

Chris: I recognize Baker.

John B.: I am getting the Stompers for the last day of school and I don't care how much it costs.

Linda J.: But I don't wanna give you the money.

John C.: Can I ask a question? Is there going to be free food?

Stu: Speaking of free food, did we get Suzy Q's this week?

Linda C.: Romeo, Romeo!

Eddie: Hey did you guys know I got Bob Lobel for the Sophomore Luncheon?

Steve: Don't be dumb! Anyone have a cigarette? I love cigaretts!

Chris: That's the end of the meeting. Anybody have anything to say?

Linda J. and Carolyn: We don't wanna have a baby! (whine) We have diverticulitis!

(Betsy and Cathy giggle)

John C.: I'd like to motion to adjourn.

Mark: Yes, I believe that I would like to second that motion!

Eddie: Okay, I'm easy.

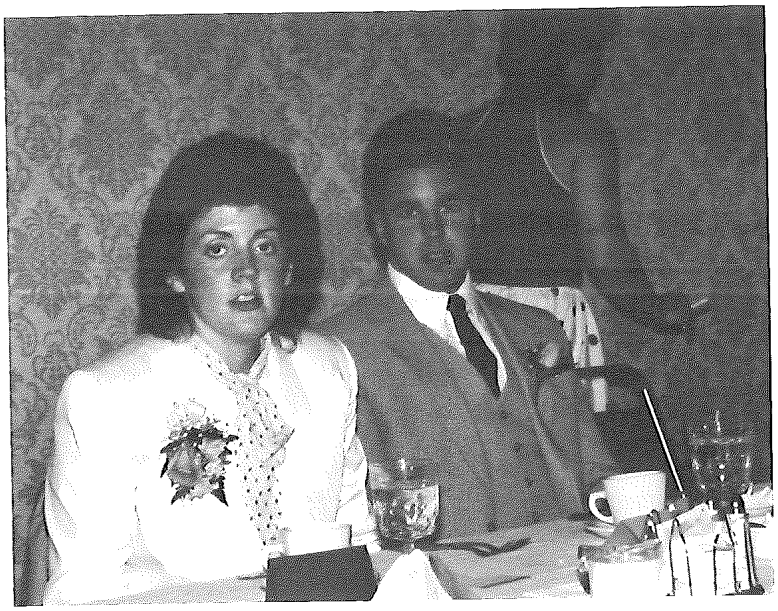

Chris: All in favor? (16 hands go up) Commissioner Curran, are you going to vote?

Lenny: What are we voting on?

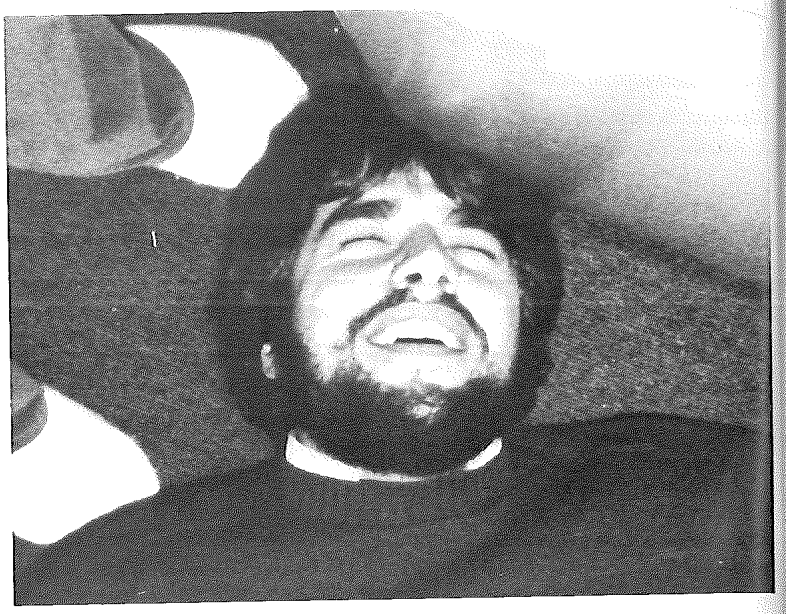

Stu: He's just faking that he's not paying attention. Lenny raise your hand if you want to leave.

Dean Goff: Chris, before you adjourn I'd like to say just two things . . . . . .

And as we leave the meeting of the Student Senate, we say Aloha to all the senators and good luck next year.

Okay, now put the muffins in my pocket.

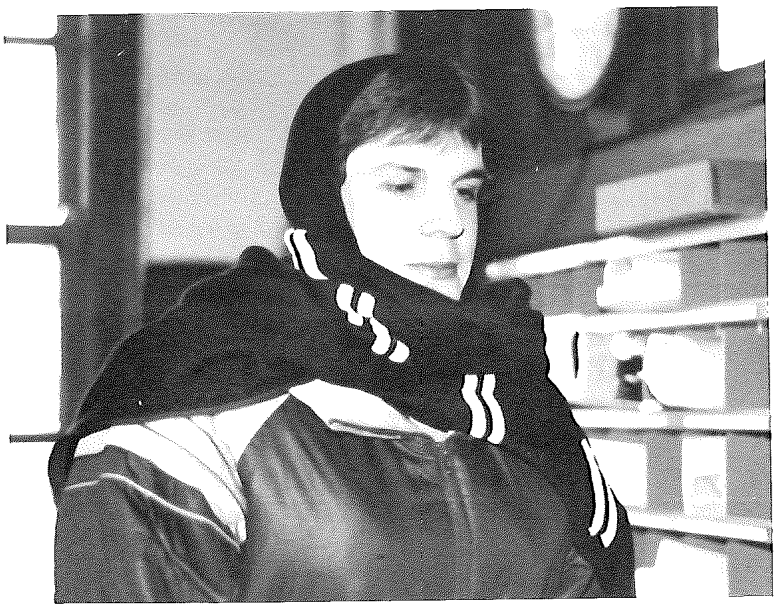

Here's the position of our president.

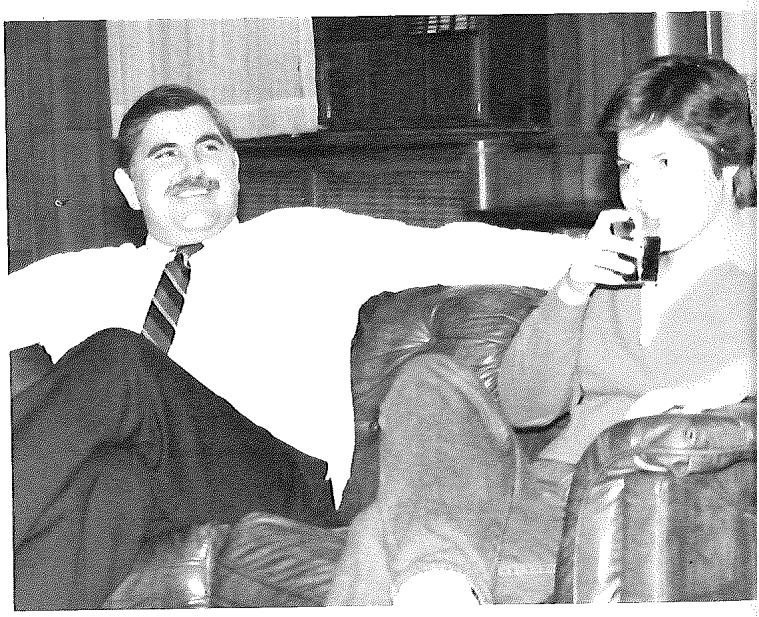

Who's that behind those Foster Grant's.

My wife? . . . .

Who's that lady?

Why would I want to buy swamp land?
